Johnny is Building Bonnyrigg Better

Like many school leavers, Johnny found the task of job searching and planning for his future career daunting. Since leaving school, Johnny had helped out his cousin in the hospitality industry and worked on other bits and pieces but hadn't quite found a job where he could see himself into the future.

Thanks to a joint effort from Landcom, Lloyd Group and the SGCH Catalyst program, Johnny is now working on the job site for the Bonnyrigg Newleaf Community Centre, right near home.

Landcom, who are the developer for Newleaf Community, have a strong commitment to lifelong learning and social sustainability. They run a Skills Exchange program that seeks to provide clear pathways for local people to access local jobs and were interested in creating an opportunity for a Bonnyrigg resident, working alongside their construction partner Lloyd Group. Lloyd Group have a collaborative approach with their clients and consultants and were more than happy to accommodate a work placement arrangement.

Johnny heard about the job opportunity when he attended a community bingo event, where someone spoke about potential employment opportunities within the Bonnyrigg development.

Johnny, who has lived his whole life in the Bonnyrigg community jumped on the opportunity.

"I was connected to the Catalyst program and spoke with Carrie. She helped me to fix up my resume and also to get my white card", says Johnny.

"Carrie would be great to help out with people leaving high school at Bonnyrigg. Before I found this job I found it really difficult. There are lots of kids who might not know how to find a job and Carrie could be a big help."
